Ship Missing in Pacific Found and Crew Rescued

Navy tender Elder found in South Pacific, disabled by fire and explosions. Crew rescued.

BY ROY ESSOYAN

PEARL HARBOR, March 18—(AP)—All 40 crewmen of the net tender Elder, blackened by fire and blasted by explosion, were rescued yesterday near the navy's mid-Pacific atomic testing area.

The dock landing ship Comstock picked up 26 men from a life boat and rafts at 3:15 P. M. (8:15 P. M. EST). They had drifted for a week in shark-infested waters after abandoning the stricken 163-foot Elder.

The destroyer tender Piedmont reached the stricken net tender herself at 11 P. M. (4 A. M. EST Saturday) and reported the other 14 crewmen were aboard and "all in good shape". They had stayed aboard to continue fighting the blaze.

The Elder, with five feet of water in her badly burned engine room, declined help from the Piedmont's crew.

"I can manage my own ship with my own men," said the Elder's Skipper Lt. William F. Adams of Wilmar, Calif. The Piedmont radioed that the Elder's 14 men were in "very good to excellent condition."

Adams said his disabled craft was passed up Monday by the transport Gen. A. W. Brewster despite the Elder's signalling "with everything we had aboard except our three-inch gun." He said the Brewster was only two miles away.

"We signalled with flares, a square flag, international distress signal, smoke signals and mirrors. We fired 20-millimeter guns and Very pistols. The crew jumped up and down on deck, waving anything they could lay their hands on."

The only reason the Elder didn't fire her three-inch gun, Adams said, was that all the three-inch ammunition had been thrown overboard while fighting the fire.

The twin rescue ended an intensive air and seas search for the Elder—six days overdue at Eniwetok, scene of forthcoming atomic experiments.

What had happened to her was a mystery until the 26 men were picked up from the rafts in the central Pacific.

After they climbed aboard the Comstock, the sailors called for water then told their story.

Fire and Explosion

Fire broke out in the engine room of the net tender March 10. A series of explosions followed.

The crew fought the spreading flames and jettisoned the ammunition aboard. All morning and all afternoon they struggled against the fire.

Then the Elder's commander ordered 26 of the crew to abandon ship. They put out in a life boat and rafts.

The other 14—eleven enlisted men and her three commissioned officers—remained aboard to continue their fire fighting. They were still tossing ammunition overboard as the 26 pulled away.

"They couldn't go into the engine room," one said. "It was too hot."

"There was a lot of three-inch casing ammunition floating around," another said.

Those 14 conquered the fire. They were still manning the flame and explosion scarred Elder when aid came a week later.

Plight Was Unknown

Both the fire and explosion were unknown to the outside world. All that was known was that she had left Hawaii with a load of navigation buoys to be used during the atomic tests and had failed to arrive at Eniwetok. She was last heard from March 7, about 130 miles north of Johnston Island which is 700 miles from Pearl Harbor.

The only other report came from the military transport Gen. A. W. Brewster. The transport said she sighted the Elder Monday and the net tender was "in no apparent trouble."

The search by plane and ship began early this week.

Yesterday afternoon, navy search planes spotted the life boat and rafts.

The 26 crewmen, their life boat and two rafts lashed together, were picked up about 660 miles east of Eniwetok. All were in good condition to climb up the Comstock's landing net.

Three and one-half hours after their rescue, a search plane reported sighting the Elder. The first radio said the battered net tender had "an undetermined number of survivors" aboard.

The Piedmont, searching the area, raced to the Elder.

The salvage ship Deliverer is expected to reach the Elder this afternoon to take her in tow to Kwajalein, 500 miles away. The Deliverer left Eniwetok Thursday to join the search.

Adm. C. H. McMorris, commander of the Hawaiian sea frontier, said of the successful rescue effort: "I'm very gratified that everybody has been picked up. Everybody all down the line has done a perfectly splendid job."

"I'm satisfied to find our organization, in an emergency such as this, functioning as it has."

Mrs. Yvette Madsen Guilty of Murder

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 18—(AP)—Mrs. Yvette Madsen of Brooklyn was convicted today of murdering her air force husband and was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

The beautiful, 22-year-old mother of two stood pale but erect as a three-judge American occupation court handed down its verdict, finding her guilty of the deliberate "treacherous" murder of Lt. Andrew F. Madsen of Oakland, Calif., after a gay party last Oct. 20.

The court rejected a defense plea that Mrs. Madsen was temporarily insane at the time.

The prosecution contended that her husband, Lt. Andrew E. Madsen of Oakland, Calif., was slain as the climax of an argument with another officer at the party on the relative merits of the southern drawl vs. Mrs. Madsen's Brooklyn accent.

ELYRIA, March 18—(AP)—A collision of two automobiles on an icy street early today killed John B. Redman, a passenger in one of the cars.

County Revenue Increased only To Run Hospital

Duplicate Revision Completed—only State OK Needed

Fayette County's new tax rates have been set up, the budget commission has approved the budget, and County Auditor Ulric T. Acton is planning to take the new duplicate to Columbus for quick approval of the state tax authorities, so that the duplicate of the first taking district may be turned over to County Treasurer Charles Fabb, during the coming week.

The tax rates were set up in record time, following notification of the state board of tax appeals that there would have to be an increase in real estate valuations in Fayette County.

Duplicate Increased

Figures released at the office of Acton Saturday show that the increase carried in the new valuations as recommended by the state Board of Tax Appeals, is 20.08 percent over the valuations fixed by Acton.

The figures show the total valuation of real estate now to be $33,913,800 or $5,670,790 above the $28,243,010 valuation fixed by Acton.

The new valuation of $33,913,800, is an increase of $9,583,400 over the old valuation for 1948.

However, the county budget commission, composed of Prosecutor Clark Wickensimer, chairman, Auditor Acton, secretary and treasurer Fabb, met Friday and approved the 1950 budget, which carries a total of $361,311.27 in the general fund, including money for county hospital purposes, bond retirement, etc.

The new rates are expected to bring in about $18,000 more than old rates because rates in every taxing district in the county will be lower.

State OK Needed

It is expected that inasmuch as the valuations were increased along lines recommended by the state Board of Tax Appeals that they will be approved without delay.

The $18,000 increase is to meet hospital requirements Acton said.

Acton explained that the new valuation of real estate is a 39.34 percent increase over the old valuation for 1948.

He pointed out that as soon as the rates are approved the county and any taxing district in the county can borrow money in anticipation of the collection of taxes, if such a step is deemed necessary before funds are available from taxes.

The new valuations boost the realty valuation fixed by the auditor in Washington C. H. from $8,368,910 to $10,300,190.

In rural Fayette County the valuation is raised from $18,878,120 to $22,518,030.

Rates All Reduced

The auditor said the budget commission set up a county rate of 2.50 mills, which is .15 of a mill under the county rate last year. However, due to the big increase in valuation the lower rate will bring in more money.

It was also stated by the auditor that work on the duplicate will be rushed through as soon as the rates are approved and that when the duplicate is completed in each district, it will be turned over to the treasurer.

It will then be necessary for the treasurer to make out bills and receipts and mail out the bills before first taxes can be collected.

Payments About Same

The fact that the new rates based on the increased valuation of real estate, mean little more in taxes will be paid by the average person, is being stressed.

In Washington C. H. the new rate tentatively set up is 18.90 mills compared with 19.10 mills last year.

The new rates, which must be approved by the state tax authorities, and the old rates for the various townships and municipalities, follow:

District	1949	1948
Concord Twp.	12.10	13.70
Green Twp.	11.20	12.70
Jasper Twp.	11.60	13.70

Paint Twp.	10.60	12.70
Perry Twp.	9.50	10.70
Union Twp.	11.25	13.40
Wayne Twp.	10.80	10.70
Washington C. H.	18.90	19.10

Hospital Dedication Plans Here Outlined

Opening Is Expected Early in May And A. E. Weatherly Named Chairman

The new Fayette County Memorial Hospital will be opened to the public about the first week in May.

Although there can be no positive certainty as to the actual date, owing to the great volume of detail involved in the finishing touches in construction work and final placing of the thousands of items of equipment, the two hospital boards and the administrator, are straining every effort to be ready the first part of May.

A. E. Weatherly, district manager of The Dayton Power and Light

Company is to be general chairman for three afternoons of "open house" followed by the official dedication day ceremonies on Sunday afternoon.

This was the general plan agreed upon at a meeting of the members of both the construction board and the operating board, held Friday evening in the second floor conference room of the Record-Herald building.

To Pick Assistants
Weatherly, who was present and accepted the heavy responsibility of directing the event, was given full authority to name all his assistants and special committees.

All who are connected with the hospital project have indicated a willingness to assume any duties to which the general chairman may assign them.

Tentative plans as yet are very general in scope but there is a broad agreement that three afternoons will be assigned to "open house", probably Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the week finally selected for the opening. On these three days the general public will be given full opportunity for a thorough inspection of the institution with guides provided to explain in detail every department and its operations. The public will be asked to try to make these assigned afternoons the time to plan such inspection, since the dedication, to follow on Sunday afternoon will provide for a program which will make it difficult to permit complete inspection in detail by the general public.

The dedication program is to be worked out in detail at an early date on the Sunday assigned for this, it is expected that there will be scores of physicians, surgeons and hospital authorities and officials from other cities, who will desire to completely inspect the institution after the dedicatory services.

Chairman Weatherly will announce various committee chairmen and other assistants from time to time as plans develop, it was stated.

On dedication day the hospital will be turned over officially from the construction board to the new board which will have charge of policy and operation.

Immediately following the dedicatory services and official inspection, the hospital will be opened for public service, according to present plans.

Miss Joan Campbell, a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, was to have appeared on the program which was originally scheduled for last month. Miss Campbell, a WHS graduate of last June, was billed for a vocal number.

The day before the program was to have been given, Miss Campbell telephoned her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Colin C. Campbell, that it had been postponed until March 19. Thursday night, she called again to tell them the whole thing was off. Her only explanation was that the QWU cast had been told the station's program schedule was being revamped.

The program was to have come from WLW-C (channel 3) out of Columbus at 5:30 P. M., Sunday.

Miss Blanche Roberts is convinced that those little classified advertisements in the Record-Herald gets results. . . but she also is convinced they're not a good way to get a quiet evening at home.

Those sentiments were expressed by the voice of experience when she came to the office to discontinue one.

Miss Roberts, whose home is out on the Leesburg Pike, had advertised a tenant house for rent, she said. From the time the papers got into the homes in Washington C. H. until bedtime, she said, he had 31 calls inquiring about it.

"I could hardly get anything done for answering the telephone," she said.

They started again bright and early the next morning, too, but Miss Roberts fled from the jangle and came in to discontinue the ad.

Incidentally, this would seem to be pretty good evidence that the housing shortage here has not been relieved to any great extent.

Missing Cadet Killed, Belief

Hope Is Abandoned For Ohio Youth

MANSFIELD, March 18—(AP)—The family of missing Cadet Richard C. Cox refused to give up hope today, despite statements from West Point officials that the youth must have been murdered.

But, said a spokesman for the distraught family of the 21-year-old Mansfield cadet, "we don't know what to believe."

Lt. Col. Edwin N. Howell, West Point provost marshal, said yesterday:

"I am convinced this is foul play. I'm sure we will not find the man alive."

The academy already has dropped Cox from its rolls in compliance with directives relating to absence over 30 days. The Mansfield youth has been missing since Jan. 14 when he left his quarters to keep an appointment on the reservation with a man he referred to as "George."

Lt. Col. William Proctor, public relations officer at the academy, said:

"I can only think that Cox has been done in by George or they both were done in by somebody else."

Cox told fellow-cadets before he disappeared that he had served as an enlisted man in Germany with George. He kept one appointment with the mysterious George before he disappeared.

Rupert Cox, Jr., older brother of the missing cadet, said of the West Point officials' statements:

"Unless they have some definite proof we don't know about, we refuse to believe it."

The older brother said he spoke for the entire family. The cadet's mother left Mansfield yesterday for an undisclosed source for a "rest," the brother said.

Since the disappearance, scores of officers and enlisted men have searched the 15,000 acre academy reservation daily without success.

Cox was an army sergeant before he entered West Point in 1948. Proctor called him "a damn good boy" who stood high in his class in his studies and his military aptitude.

"There was no reason for him to go AWOL," said the officer, "and we know of no family or financial difficulties."

Proctor said he felt the mysterious George would come forward by now if he were not directly connected with the disappearance. The case has been widely publicized.

In Mansfield, members of Cox's family and his girl friend, Miss Betty Timmons, were just as baffled by the disappearance. But they're "not giving up hope."

Crash Kills Youth And Injures Girl

CLEVELAND, March 18—(AP)—An automobile skidded into a utility pole today and killed Patrick J. Healey, 20. His companion, Eleanor Glassner, 16, a junior at Notre Dame Academy, was taken to Charity Hospital with skull and chest injuries, and is in a critical condition.

By DAVID A. O'HARA

BOSTON, March 18—(AP)—Invaluable letters and documents recounting the Revolutionary War period are missing from the archives in the Massachusetts state house.

Among the papers missing are letters signed by George Washington, John Adams, Paul Revere, Benjamin Franklin, Benedict Arnold and Peter Stuyvesant.

Theft of the letters and documents over a period of years was disclosed last night by the Massachusetts attorney general's office.

'Only Playing a Game' Murder Jury Is Told

Youth Is Accused Of Choking Girl Following Dance

IOWA CITY, March 18—(AP)—A policeman told a jury yesterday that Robert E. Bednasek, University of Iowa psychology student, related he had played a "game of blackout" with his pretty co-ed sweetheart shortly before she was found dead.

The testimony was by Policeman Charles H. Snider, one of the first witnesses called in the campus murder trial of the bushy-haired, 24-year-old Bednasek. He is charged with strangling to death Margaret Anne (Gee-Gee) Jackson, 20, whose evening-gown-clad body was found last Dec. 11 in the rooming house where Bednasek lived.

Snider testified that about 2 A. M. on Dec. 11 Bednasek came to a police station near his rooming house to summon help. He said he and another officer went to the rooming house and found the body of Miss Jackson, clad in a white evening gown, lying on the lower bed of a double-tiered bunk in a second floor room.

Snider said that while he was examining the girl Bednasek related that he was "only playing a game."

"You know, blackout," Snider quoted Bednasek as saying.

"Blackout" is a stunt in which unconsciousness is temporarily produced by holding the breath and squeezing the neck.

Bednasek and Miss Jackson attended a formal dance at his fraternity Saturday night preceding her death, and returned after the dance to his rooming house where earlier they had had a private candle-light supper.

Testimony disclosed that shortly after 2 o'clock Sunday morning, Bednasek ran to the nearby police station for help. Two officers said that when they arrived at the rooming house they found Bednasek clad in a topcoat, Tuxedo and pants, but no shirt.

Snider said he asked Bednasek: "What have you been doing, making bare chested love?"

He said the defendant replied: "Yeah, yeah. What about it?"

In his opening statement, Defense counsel Clair Hamilton said the room was "stifling hot" and that Bednasek had torn off his shirt while attempting to revive Miss Jackson.

The state in its statement said Bednasek killed the girl because she was "drifting away" from him and that he was afraid he was losing her. The defense said the two students were seeing each other constantly and "drifting closer together despite the objection of her parents."

The defense also disclosed that Bednasek underwent treatment with pentathol drug at the University Hospital psychopathic ward to restore his memory of what happened in the rooming house. Hamilton said the treatment had worked and that Bednasek would testify as to what happened.

Pacifist Is Jailed In Wilmington for Resisting Officer

WILMINGTON, March 18—(AP)—The Rev. Ernest Bromley, 36, pacifist leader, was jailed last night on a charge of resisting an officer.

Bromley, who heads the tax protest committee of the peacekeepers organizations, was arrested during an argument over eviction from his apartment.

Constable Raymond Winfield said the minister scuffled with him over a camera when he sought to evict Bromley. The eviction notice was filed by Coleman McGown, owner of the property. No reason was given.

The minister was one of a group who refused formally Wednesday to pay federal income taxes because they objected to part of the revenue being used for the manufacture of armaments.

Valuable Documents of Colonial Days Missing

His emplacement of artillery at that site resulted in the British evacuation of Boston 174 years ago yesterday.

Attorney General Francis E. Kelly informed rate book dealers in a letter dated Feb. 27 that "some or all" of the documents "may have been taken from the Archives by a former employee."

Kelly added in the letter that investigation disclosed "that this former employee either sold or offered some or all of the documents for sale to dealers in rare books and documents."

Dealers in historical documents said any thief would have trouble disposing of such loot.

They pointed out that a thief may get scared and burn them. One dealer, Ralph Newman of Chicago, suggested that "the best way to get them back is to offer a reward with no questions asked."

Police in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other leading rare manuscript markets have been requested to check dealers, auction houses and libraries for the missing papers.

Down on the Farm

2 The Record-Herald Saturday, March 18, 1950
Washington C. H., Ohio

Farm and Home Week To Draw Many from Here

Program To Open At Ohio State Next Tuesday

Several residents of Fayette County were making plans to attend the 38th annual Farm and Home Week, which starts at Ohio State University next Tuesday.

A wide program of activities aimed at making better homemakers of housewives and better farmers of the men of the house have been planned during the four-day meet.

One of the top special events will be the 21st annual Grange conference, which will be held on the Ohio State University Campus from March 20 to 23.

The Ohio Flying Farmers will come in for their share of attention on the program. A banquet for the group has been scheduled for 6:30 P. M. Tuesday. An all day meeting has been planned for Tuesday at which the various uses of the airplane in agriculture will be discussed.

One of the other highlights of the week will be the FFA public speaking contest, scheduled to get underway at 10 A. M. Friday. Finals in the contest will be held at 2 P. M.

Among some of the topics which will be discussed during Farm and Home Week, which, incidentally, is staged by the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State are as follows:

"New uses for Agricultural Products," "Pest Control in Legumes, Grain, Potatoes and Canning," "Hidden Costs in Mechanical Harvesting," "More Milk Through Better Breeding."

Demonstrations will be given on halter making, dehorning calves, fitting and showing, upholstering a chair, fire prevention in the home, safety in the kitchen and homemaking behind the scenes in television.

Clinics will be held on farm building, operating tractors, workmen's compensation, plowing, combining and on farm leasing.

Jasper Sow Has 19 Pigs

"The pig crop in Fayette County would be greatly increased," states County Agent W. W. Montgomery, "if all the sows were as prolific as at least one in Jasper Township."

L. W. Green, who owns a farm in Jasper Township, reported to the county agent that on Friday, March 10, he had a crossbred Hampshire and Duroc sow that farrowed nineteen pigs. At the present time seventeen of these pigs are still alive, divided as follows: Eleven have dinner plates with the sow and six have the nursing bottle.

Probably one reason for the success attached to this large litter was the fact that she is a project of Ronald Graves, an FFA boy at Jeffersonville. Ronald's father, Hershel, takes care of all the hogs on Green's farm and has had a very high litter average during the last two or three farrowing periods, Ohio Swine.

Sales from last fall's litter averaged nearly eight pigs per sow.

County Agent Montgomery asks that the other farmers with exceptionally large litters report to him and, wherever possible, enter some of these litters in the Ohio Swine Improvement Program.

The name of China's Hainan Island means "Sea-South," says the National Geographic Society.

Activities On the Farm

By THOMAS E. BERRY
LADINO CLOVER AND KENTUCKY-31 FESCUE

We recently received a supply of seedlings of Ladino Clover and Ky-31 Fescue, that we'll distribute through our real estate and insurance office at 128½ North High Street, Hillsboro, Ohio. If you'd like to have one of these seedlings, call at the office, or write us and we'll mail it to you.

You'll find the information very practical. Ladino Clover and Ky-31 Fescue are farm crops that do very well together, and they grow on very poor land—land that is too poor in most cases to raise anything. Then they do very well on the better grazing land.

If you have never raised Ladino Clover and Ky-31 Fescue, sow some this year, just like you would sow your clover and timothy, and you'll be well pleased.

THE KILFER

This is the name of a farm tool that breaks up ground to a depth of two or three feet. It is mounted on wheels and pulled by a tractor.

"A kilfer is a tool for loosening up hardpan sub-soil," an associate in our office just pointed out. It is made by the John Deere Co. and called a sub-soiler. I'd suggest that you call on a representative of this company in your community, and learn more about this farm tool. You'll find it of great value if you have soil on your farm that is very firm, or has hardpan sub-soil.

PRUNING GRAPES

This is a good time to prune the grapes—to cut back the new growth to three buds, and to remove the dead vines. If you do no more than that, your grape crop will be improved both in quality and quantity.

PENCIL FARMING

This is a good time of the year too to do some pencil farming—to accurately plan for the work of the year, and set up goals in crop production, "we'll not just raise corn this year, but we'll raise more corn per acre than we have ever raised before, and we'll do it by simply doing the things that most farmers know to do, but may not do." This is a suggestion from two very successful farmers. I refer to my own grandfather Berry and to my father; through the years it has been of great help to me, not only in farming but in my insurance and real estate business, and even in my small apary; (and this reminds me that I must order 10 or 15 queens, from high producing gentle strains, and that I must do it right away, for one strong hive, headed by a good producing queen, will produce more than several ordinary hives, headed by an ordinary queen, like you find with swarms on many farms in our great nation).

MOLASSES FOR LIVESTOCK

When you can buy 6½ gallon of livestock molasses for the same price as a bushel of corn, it will pay to buy it for dairy and beef cattle.

"I just heard this on the farm program of WLW," I said to a successful dairyman who replied, "Yes, that's correct, but you can have some trouble from feeding too much molasses to dairy cattle, for they may have an impairment very similar to milk fever. The animals become listless and stagger, and have a sweetish sickening odor in their breath and milk. If you are feeding molasses, the thing to do is feed it in moderation, and if the animals get 'off feed' reduce the molasses in the diet."

Food, Farming and You

Talking with Butcher Helps Keep Prices Up

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP)—Madam, that extra time you take to discuss a cut of meat with your butcher helps make your grocery bill larger.

Every minute you use takes up about three cents of the butcher's time. At least, that's the way the Agriculture Department figures it.

In other words, the more customers a butcher is able to serve in the course of a day, the smaller the markup the store management must make to cover the butcher's wage.

Buying Streamlined

Housewives who can't make up their minds at the meat counter are one reason many retail stores are offering pre-cut and pre-wrapped meats from a self-service counter.

A recent agriculture department survey showed that the number of such stores increased from 400 to 1,200 during the past year.

"Most food buyers like the idea," the department said. "It does away with waiting lines at the meat counter, gives larger selection of meats and makes it easier to buy the kind and quantity of meat to suit the family budget."

However, the department said, some food shoppers still prefer to talk with their butcher and then watch him cut the meat. Such shoppers seldom realize, it added, that this time could be used more economically cutting meat.

The survey showed that the pre-packaging service may help bring about changes in demands for meat. Under self-service, sales of beef steaks and roasts, poultry and specialty items have increased. Sales of smoked hams, seafoods and pork roasts have decreased compared to sales by conventional methods.

Some Conclusions

This may indicate the self-service system is encouraging further expansion in cattle production but discouraging hog raising.

Costs per package were higher in stores handling smaller amounts.

In stores selling relatively large amounts unskilled labor costs increased faster than skilled costs, indicating a more efficient use of the meat cutter's time by relieving him of wrapping and sealing.

The survey showed an increase in meat sales in stores with self-service counters. The department said it does not believe, however, that self-service merchandising results in increased meat consumption.

"More likely," it said, "the sales increased because food buyers were attracted to the new method."

Spring Pigs and Lambs Increasing

The spring pig and lamb population has been growing rapidly in this community during the past two or three weeks, and many of them arrived during the severe weather.

This seems to be a spring of large litters, and the number has been running eight to 19 in the county, reports indicate.

Reports state that an unusually large number of the pigs as well as lambs, are being saved during their first few days of life.

Grass Seed Sowing Now Under Way

Work of sowing grass seed is now underway in this area and a heavy acreage of wheat is being seeded to grass. Work of sowing the seed will be completed later this month.

The sap of the coconut palm, called toddy, is a favorite drink in many Pacific Islands, according to National Geographic Society.

New Uses for Farm Produce

Demonstrations Are Set for March 22

Dozens of new uses for agricultural products will be demonstrated March 22 during Farm and Home Week on the Ohio State University campus.

These new uses, developed through agricultural research, will be explained and exhibited by F. L. Teuton, of the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural and Industrial Chemistry.

Teuton, who has been booked as the main speaker on the Wednesday afternoon general session, uses samples of finished products to illustrate his talk. These products include fabrics, brushes, foods and confections.

At a recent meeting in Tennessee he won an enthusiastic endorsement from his audience by showing how to prepare a refreshing drink from apple concentrate and by passing out pectinated coated almonds and apple candy.

In this performance, he wore clothes made of corn fiber.

"What's New in Agriculture and Home Economics" is the theme for this second day of Farm and Home Week, and every department of the College of Agriculture and School of Home Economics is preparing programs to present the latest information of value to Ohio farmer and homemakers.

Grain Market

CHICAGO, March 18—(AP)—Mixed trends ruled in most grains at the opening on the Board of Trade today, although wheat had a weak undertone.

The official weather bureau forecast held out hope for moisture tonight or tomorrow in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma, and this fact discouraged buying in wheat.

Soybeans again showed relative firmness. Buying came in part from commission houses.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, March 18—(P)—Anyone looking for a quick peace with Russia, or maybe any peace with Russia, got an awakening from the tough, cold speech of Secretary of State Acheson yesterday at Berkeley, Calif.

Looking at the critical relations between this country and Russia, Acheson examined the philosophy of the Soviet leaders, condemned it, and did three specific things.

1. He denounced their tactics.
2. He denounced their aims.
3. And he laid down seven points which, if agreed to by the men in the Kremlin, would mean a Soviet surrender without firing a shot.

Yet those seven points were listed by Acheson as steps the Soviets should take if they want to have peace.

When he had finished listing them, Acheson gave a flat warning to everyone not to get any false hopes about peace.

He made it clear that before this country sticks its neck out the Russian leaders will have to make agreements that are nailed down solid.

He said: "we are always ready to discuss, to negotiate, to agree, but we are understandably loath to play the role of international sucker."

And he added: "I see no evidence that the Soviet leaders will change their conduct until the progress of the free world convinces them that they cannot profit from a continuation of these tensions."

"We want peace but not at any price... we must recognize that our ability to achieve our purposes cannot rest alone on a desire for peace, but that it must be supported by the strength to meet whatever tasks providence may have in store for us."

Acheson cited, as examples of the things he thinks the Soviet leaders should do to show they mean well, some of the very situations in which the Russians have stood most firmly against us."

He mentioned the differences between this country and Russia on a peace settlement for Germany, Austria, Japan; he suggested the Soviets withdraw their troops and police from the satellite areas; he said they should stop being bottlenecks in the United Nations; they ought to agree to the plan, agreed to by the United States, for control of atomic energy.

(But in each of those cases the stand already taken by the Russians is part of their general policy).

Further, he suggested which it controls in other countries as a means of undermining and overthrowing the governments of those countries.

(But if the Kremlin divorced itself from Communist parties in other countries it would stand alone, which is exactly what the Russians don't want to do and exactly why they control foreign Communist parties.)

And Acheson even suggested the Russians should stop pumping into their own people propaganda against other nations, particularly the United States.

(But this anti-western propaganda is one of the techniques by which the Kremlin tries to keep the Russian people in line, by appealing to their Russian nationalism and painting the rest of the world as an enemy.)

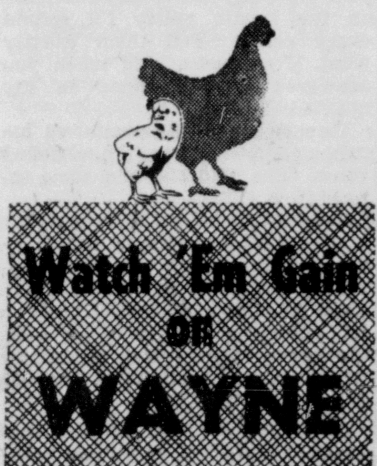

He didn't rule out the possibility that Communism and capitalism can live peacefully in the same world, but—

Whether they can live side by side, Acheson said, depends on the Soviet leaders.

4-H Club Work An Important Farm Adjunct

Boys and girls on Ohio farms, who last year raised nearly 19,000 head of livestock, 119,500 chickens and preserved 18,500 quarts of food, are preparing this week for another record-breaking year of 4-H club work.

Enrollment is already underway in many parts of the state with "kick-off" meetings, special enrollment drives and program planning sessions, according to W. H. Palmer, state club leader.

In a report, Palmer summarized the major activities of Ohio's 62,816 club members in 1949. These farm youth started 75,637 projects and carried 64,582 of them through the season for a completion record of 85 percent.

Tabulating the activities of these boys and girls, Palmer found that during the past year they made outstanding accomplishments in agricultural and home economics projects.

Grand totals in some of the projects were as follows: Gardens, 333 acres; food crops, 1,017 acres; food frozen, 24,767 pounds; meals planned prepared and served, 61,795; rooms improved, 528; arts and craft articles produced, 519; garments made, 29,982; and home management projects, 60.

Farm, home, and community improvements stood high on the list of accomplishments during 1949, Palmer said. Among these achievements, he listed 11,971 members participating in fire and accident prevention work, 2,632 conducting soil and wildlife conservation practices, and 3,637 in engaging in agricultural engineering, electricity, tractor maintenance and general farm repair projects.

molasses, especially in the winter, because cattle drink much more water than they do if molasses is not fed.

Did you ever notice that when you eat candy, the next thing you want is a drink of water? Cattle react in the same way; so feeding molasses helps you to increase the water intake of your cattle, and that's very important.

Contour Strip Crop In Madison Township

FRANCIS BAKER
(Soil Conservationist)
The first system of contour strip cropping in Fayette County has been laid out for Robert Jackson on the Alpha Realty Farms in Madison Township. This system contains about 150 acres of cropland and is located along State Route 277.

What is contour strip cropping? A system of contour strips is composed of alternate strips of either a row crop or grain crop and a meadow crop. These strips vary in width from 16 to 14 rows of corn. They follow around the slope on an approximately level line.

What are the advantages of contour strip cropping? On many long slopes, even though those slopes are not steep, gains velocity as it travels down the slope. As the velocity of running water is doubled, its erosive power is increased four times.

By breaking the length of the slope into alternate strips of grain crops and meadow crops the velocity of the water is greatly reduced as it enters and crosses each of the meadow strips. Thus each meadow strip acts as a brake to reduce the speed of running water.

This reduction of velocity results in less soil erosion and loss of rainfall that is needed for crop growth. Experiments in this state have shown that contour strip the surface runoff from rainfall cropping has reduced soil losses by 73 per cent and water losses by 40 per cent. This is a substantial reduction of losses against farm bank accounts—the soil.

Experiments in this state also have proven that the more topsoil to farm with, the better our crop yields will be. Thousands of acres in this county need contour strip cropping to help control erosion. It is not the whole answer to this problem of soil deterioration, but it can be used on sloping lands to help prevent this heavy drain on the basic farm resource—the soil.

Dairy Association Gets Results Here

Two hundred and six Fayette County dairymen are part owners of a large dairy organization, according to Albert G. Cobb, associate county agent here.

These farmers own shares of stock in the Central Ohio Co-operative Breeding Association that serves 56 counties. More than 20,000 farmers belong to this organization. The association paid a 4 percent dividend on capital shares. The association owns nearly a quarter million dollars in proven dairy bulls, buildings, machinery and supplies necessary to operate.

Dale Smith, dairy technician, reported that his conception rate for February was 62.5 percent. This is a little better percentage than most bulls have for normal service. The average of all inseminations was 60 percent.

Rex Bloomer, is president of the county dairy association, Dale Wilson is vice president and Mrs.

Dale Smith is secretary and treasurer.

The county dairy organization has assisted in promoting a sound dairy extension program. The committee working on this program is J. L. Gibeaut, chairman, Rex Bloomer, Dale Smith, Preston Dray Donald Rife, and Mrs. R. L. Brubaker.

This is one of many extension committees working with the county extension agents in building and executing programs to bring the latest proven information to the farmers of the county.

Truman's Annual Pay Equal To $3,000,000

An interesting situation, relative to the financial advantages now enjoyed by the president of the United States, has been pointed out in a special feature story during the last few days by the Associated Press under a Washington D. C. date line.

That President Truman is now one of the highest paid officials in the world becomes apparent when all his "luxury" facilities, vacation "retreats" with some tax-free income, are listed.

The dispatch says:

"Rep. Roy O. Woodruff, Republican, Michigan, says President Truman is 'one of the best, if not the best paid man in the world today.'"

"Representative Woodruff figured it this way, in a statement today:

"A private citizen, to match the standard of living now enjoyed by the president would need an income of between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 a year."

"First off, Mr. Woodruff said Mr. Truman has taken-home pay of $110,000 a year out of his $150,000 salary—of which $50,000 is tax free.

"How many other men have a take-home pay of $110,000 a year? he inquired.

"Then he listed presidential services as follows:

"Forty-two 'facilities' for travel, vacationing and entertaining—including planes, 35 White House automobiles, the yacht Williamsburg, private Pullman car and vacation retreats in Key West, Fla., and Maryland.

"An estimated staff of 665 persons to run them at an annual cost of $1,491,540.

"A White House travel allowance of from $33,896 to $40,000 exclusive of air travel which is charged to the Air Force.

"The yacht Williamsburg, for which crew costs alone are $190,000 annually.

"The president's personal plane, the Independence, costing $1,133,000 to build and about $120,000 a year to man.

"The president's private railroad car, costing between $250,000 and $350,000.

"A destroyer escort for the yacht Williamsburg. Mr. Woodruff says it costs the Navy $876,000 a year to operate a destroyer.

"Secret Service guards and White House police costing $459,200 a year.

"White House salary costs of $998,254 a year for a staff of 225.

"By comparison," Mr. Woodruff added, "President Roosevelt in 1945 had a staff of 53 costing $256,431, and President Hoover's staff totaled 37 at a salary bill of $127,200."

"Then there are vacation retreats at Key West and Shangri-La—the latter a presidential hide-out 70 miles from Washington in nearby Maryland.

"And in addition to the regular White House fleet of about 25 cars, Mr. Woodruff continues it is getting a 'luxury fleet' of 10 new cars.

"These, he said, are especially-built limousines with 'gold-plated' door-handles, vanities and perfume cases."

The older citizens who learned fewer subjects in school, but had them drilled into him, never ceases to wonder at the frequently misspellings on public notices, and even on the signs in the windows of some places of business.

Diet and Health Skin Rash Cause Often Is Nerves

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT is a well-known fact that our nerves sometimes play us strange tricks. None is more unusual than a certain inflammation of the skin which seems to result from nervous disturbances. This disorder is limited almost entirely to women and the inflammation confined to a single area—the skin just below the nape of the neck.

It is frequently associated with some abnormal condition of the body's glandular secretions, particularly estrogens. It often occurs in women who are going through the change of life and are subject to the emotional disturbances which come at this time.

Feeling of Tension
It has been pointed out that during the change of life many women have a feeling of tension or tightness in the neck, and that this may be a contributing cause for the rash.

With proper treatment, this skin inflammation can frequently be relieved, if not completely overcome. An ointment made up of boric acid or ammoniated phenol may be added to the treatment.

Of course, the exact preparation to be used must be decided by the physician, since the strength of the preparation varies with the sensitivity of the skin.

Other ointments which seem to help are those containing ichthammol or crude coal tar.

Longer Intervals

X-ray treatments given weekly, and later on at longer intervals, also seem to be helpful. More than six to nine treatments with X-ray are seldom necessary. Quieting drugs, such as the barbiturates, may be quite helpful.

If such treatment does not bring about relief, there is often some emotional disturbance present which must be corrected.

During the change of life, when skin inflammation of the nape of the neck most often occurs, treatment with estrogens by injection into a muscle also helps to bring improvement.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. N.: What causes a sudden swelling on the upper lips and the face? This happens quite often.

Answer: It is likely that this condition is due to what is known as angioneurotic edema, an acute disease of the skin, characterized by one or more swellings which come quickly and disappear almost as rapidly. It is an allergic disorder, usually due to sensitivity to some food.

Treatment consists in eliminating the cause. Frequently, there is a food in the diet which is strange or unusual. The new adrenalin by injection, usually affords prompt, though temporary relief.

Features at the Theaters

When "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" bursts upon a delighted public, everyone began to ask a single question: "Who played the grinning bandit chieftain?"

His name is Alfonso Bedoya and he might well have remained in his native Mexico, had not the clamor for another view of him caused Republic Studios to sign him for a big role in "Angel in Exile", playing at the Palace next week.

For Bedoya, Hollywood is the latest adventure in a life filled with excitement and novelty. He spent 14 years wandering all over Mexico with his parents and 19 brothers and sisters. Then he came to Texas to attend school.

Used to freedom, Alfonso found classrooms unbearably dull. He ran away to work and was a dishwasher, waiter, railroad section-hand and cottonpicker.

The last-named occupation was the "low" point in Bedoya's life, though he stuck to it for only half a day. In his own words, "I get up at four in the morning and peek the cotton for hours and hours. I look back and find I have gone only two, three feet down the row and by noon, only two, three more. Both the boss man and I decide then that the cotton pecking is not the job for me!"

PLANETARY THEATER
Interplanetary warfare and other fantasies that might become realities come to the Palace screen Sunday and Monday in "Rocket Ship" and "Mars Attacks the World."

Buster Crabbe and his electric ray gun is the hero of both pictures, with Jean Rogers his leading lady straight through the program.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, "Angel in Exile" and "Curley" will be shown. The first film, a story about a gangster's war over a million dollar gold cache in Arizona, stars John Carroll, Adele Mara, Thomas Gomez and Alfonso Bedoya.

Murder over valuable mines furnishes the action in "The Painted Desert", winding up the week on Friday and Saturday. George O'Brien and Laraine Johnson have the leads. "Tarzan and the Green Goddess" and a chapter of "G-Men Never Forget" rounds out the billing.

STATE THEATER
Playing Saturday midnight, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State are "Master Minds" and "Conflict". In the first film, a Bowery Boys' comedy, Leo Gorcey tries to save Huntz Hall from a mad scientist. "Conflict" stars John Wayne in Jack London's famous prizefight story.

"Girls in Chains" and "City of Silent Men" run in a twin-bill Wednesday and Thursday. "Girls in Chains", a story about a jail run to suit its owner until a victim got on his trail, stars Arlene Judge and Roger Clark. The second film tells of an ex-convict who went straight when given a chance.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

WHEN Michael Shayne pushed the button of the Mark Dustin suite at the Sunlux Hotel, Peter Painter opened the door at once and demanded officiously, "What's this all about, Shayne?"

Shayne looked over the immaculate little man's head. Mark Dustin was the only other occupant of the large living room. He sat in a deep chair near the open east window, his face bandaged and his right hand in a plaster cast. He was hollow-eyed and wan, his torso caved in, and it was as though the death of his beautiful young wife had been more than even his splendid physique could endure.

Timothy Rourke said I was to meet you here at three. Painter snapped irritably. "Where is he?"

Shayne moved past Painter, saying, "I imagine Tim will be along. Have you got anything more on the jewel theft?"

Rourke followed Shayne into the room, his shoulders slumped and his eyes bewildered.

Painter said, "Nothing definite, strutting along beside them. We're following out several leads." He touched the insurance man's coat sleeve and asked, "Anything from your end, Randolph?"

"Not a thing," said Shayne swiftly, forestalling an answer from Randolph.

The buzzer sounded again, and Shayne swung around, stalked to the door and opened it. "Oh, here you are, Tim—and Vooiland. Come in."

Painter whirled and went back to meet the newly-arrived guests. He said, "You wanted me here, Rourke. Impatiently. What for?"

Timothy Rourke looked around the room, his eyes burning and his nostrils twitching. "It was Mike's idea," he said, and grinned. "If I'd known that..." Painter began angrily.

"You wouldn't have come," Shayne cut him off sharply. "That's why I had Tim issue the invitation. Now that you're here, you might as well stick around and make an arrest."

The five men in the room reacted according to their instincts. Vooiland fumbled in his pocket and brought out a stick of gum, unwrapped it slowly and put it in his mouth. Mark Dustin lifted his bandaged head and let his miserable eyes roam over the men standing around him. Timothy Rourke's eyes burned eagerly in their cavernous sockets as they roamed from one face to another.

He nervously took notepaper from his pocket and fumbled for a pencil. Painter darted his black and angry eyes at Shayne, then thumb-nailed his neat black moustache as his gaze went slowly from Vooiland to Dustin, and finally came to rest upon Randolph's big round face.

Randolph stammered, "I don't understand. Are... you... expecting someone else, Shayne?"

"No one else," Shayne's eyes were very bright. "I think we can settle the whole thing just between ourselves. Why don't you all sit down and we'll examine the remarkable coincidences I've discovered in connection with the sale of the fabulously expensive star rubies from Walter Vooiland's jewelry store on Lincoln Road."

Painter's black eyes snapped and he took a few steps toward Shayne. "Look here, Shayne, you can't..."

"Sit down," Shayne said quietly. The others moved across the carpet soundlessly and found chairs. Painter looked at Shayne's gaunt face and set jaw, then sank into a chair close by and sat with his small feet planted on the carpet and his body erect. "You'd better make this good, Shayne," he warned, "and quick."

Shayne stood. He said, "First, we have the curious fact that from right here in one retail store on Miami Beach during the past five years star rubies have been sold for a price totaling four hundred and five thousand dollars... though perfect star rubies are the rarest of stones, and only happen once during many years... perhaps many ages. I know the reason for this, and I offer it only as the first of a series of remarkable coincidences."

The second is that in each of these instances the jewels have been stolen soon after their purchase... and none of them have ever been recovered... even though star rubies are the most difficult of gems to fence to advantage.

"Add to this," Shayne went on, "that the first two purchasers, namely: James T. King and Roland Kendrick apparently disappeared from the face of the earth immediately after collecting insurance on their stolen rubies. There is absolutely no trace of these two men."

Painter bristled and got to his feet. "How do you know there's no trace of them," he snapped. "You're just putting on a..."

Shayne said, "Sit down. I've a couple more coincidences before I'm through. The second and third purchasers, Kendrick and Dustin, are curiously similar, in that neither of them has any past life that can be traced through friends or relatives. In the space of two years each of them wandered into Walter Vooiland's exclusive jewelry store and laid large sums of money on the line for his latest star rubies."

"Another final similarity is that the wives of both Kendrick and Dustin have been murdered."

Mark Dustin interrupted with an angry shout. "See here, Shayne. What are you trying to get at. Quit beating around the bush, and tell me who murdered Celia."

Shayne's wide mouth relaxed into a smile. "I'm pointing out a lot of coincidences," he said equably. "Give me time. Mr. Dustin and we'll see if they all add up to something we can use in solving your wife's murder."

"None of them are so very remarkable," Earl Randolph broke in nervously. He was sitting on the edge of his chair, and his eyes, still murky, appeared to stand out on stems. "I've explained to you..."

"I know," said Shayne. "A lot of people have wasted a lot of time during the past eighteen hours giving me reasonable explanations for one or more of these coincidences," Shayne admitted. "They all have to be added up to get anywhere." His gray eyes were bleak as they traveled over the group.

Painter jumped up and demanded, "Where? Where does it get you?"

To the bottom of one of the most ingenious insurance frauds ever conceived in a man's mind. Murder was only a sideline in this business. Money was the first consideration, and murder came afterward."

Painter was still standing. "If you know so much about Mrs. Dustin's death, let's have it. And (To Be Continued)

ALBANY, N. Y., March 18—(AP)—Something to remember for next March 15:

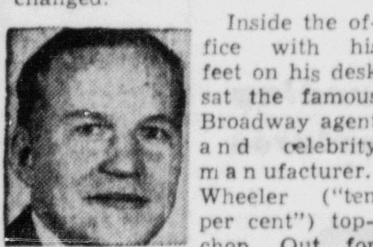

A storekeeper listed this deduction in his federal income tax return this year:

The tax clerks thought a bit, then allowed it as a business expense.

Here's How To Become a Celebrity By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK —(AP)— The frost-door pane more the sign: "The celebrity stable — celebrities bought, sold, rented and exchanged."

Inside the office with his feet on his desk sat the famous Broadway agent and a celebrity man a manufacturer. Wheeler ("ten per cent") top-chop. Out for his usual cut, Wheeler was writing to his mother. The letter warned her that if she didn't start giving him ten per cent of her monthly relief check he would snitch to the government that she was secretly buying a television set on the installment plan.

The door opened and in strode a tall, rawboned youth carrying a straw suitcase.

"I'm Elmer Cornuone from Pea Hollow, Tenn.," he said shyly. "I'm tired of being a nobody. I want to be famous."

"My boy, you have come to the right place," said Wheeler. "Take off your shoes and rest your feet."

But the agent looked disconcerted when Elmer did sit down, take off his shoes, wriggle his toes and say, "thanks, I've had 'em on all morning."

"The public is crying for new celebrities," said Wheeler, going into his pitch. "But there are three kinds of celebrities -- unknown, self-known and well-known."

"To be a well-known celebrity you have to be able to do something special or you have to have something—money."

When Elmer confessed all he had left was $23.45 -- including a $10 Confederate bill -- Wheeler looked depressed. He asked if there was anything Elmer could do. Young Cornuone scratched his head and finally allowed:

"Well, I can put two needles in my mouth and knit a baby sock in 15 minutes. But everybody in Pea Hollow already knows that."

"But the world doesn't!" exclaimed the agent excitedly. "Son, that's a wonderful stunt. You're a natural celebrity."

Wheeler whipped out a contract and Elmer wet his lips and put his "X" to it proudly. In the next two weeks Cornuone was the guest star on 15 different programs.

Then he got his own show. Dressed in a pair of satin overalls, he would start knitting the baby sock while a 97-piece band wearing silk hillbilly costumes played in the background. In the finale, as he knitted the toe, Elmer made wisecracks about his home town from one side of his mouth and played "Dixie" on a harmonica in the other.

Elmer was quoted everywhere. He endorsed three kinds of breakfast foods, four kinds of cigars and three brands of cigarettes and seriously considered yearning to smoke. Three million women bought "Knit with Elmer" kits. He was hailed as the greatest talent of his time.

In a year he earned $450,000. But Wheeler took ten per cent as his agent, ten per cent as his business manager, ten per cent as his personal secretary, ten per cent as his publicity representative, and ten per cent for writing his gags, which he copied from a 1931 film of "college humor." Then Wheeler took another ten per cent just because nobody was looking.

All this left Elmer owing Uncle Sam about $37,000. One morning, wearing a bright tan polo coat and dark sunglasses, Cornuone dropped in on his agent to borrow his usual $5 daily allowance. Wheeler gave him the $5 and said:

"This ends it, Elmer. You're done — washed up."

"Wh--wh--what do you mean?" stuttered Cornuone.

"Your sponsor has cancelled out. You're a has-been. People are tired of seeing you knit with your teeth. They think it's just a trick."

The agent then pulled out a letter and said:

"Ever hear of Otis Hogshead from Fat Wallow, Tenn?"

"Sure, I know cousin Otis," said Elmer.

"Can be really yodel a hill-billy song at the same time he's swallowing a basketball?"

"Course he can," said Elmer. "But everybody in our country is worn out from watching him doing it."

"The rest of the world isn't—yet," said Wheeler. "By the way, I'll give you $10 for that polo coat."

"What for?" asked Elmer, peeling it off.

"For cousin Otis — I don't want him to look like a bum."

Our Presidential Elections

For some reason, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and others are deeply concerned over the proposition of a change in the method of electing the president. Senator Lodge's measure includes a form of proportional representation.

In Europe, this method has been disastrous wherever tried. Under the leadership of Fiorello La Guardia, we got a spell of proportional representation in New York City which proved in operation to be so bad that the voters threw the system out at an election.

It would seem to me that we have much more important problems at the moment than changing the method of electing the president. One of them, of course, is to reify the president into our constitutional system, to be sure that he follows the law of the land and not his personal whim as he has done in the conflict between John L. Lewis and the people of the United States.

Changing electoral methods will do nothing about that, because a president who wants to function outside the law can do so at will, as Andrew Jackson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman have conclusively proved. The fact that all of them were Democrats may prove a point, or it may be coincidental.

The American people are accustomed to presidential elections and if they really wanted a change in personnel, they would have effectuated a change. Blaming the continuance of the Democrats in power on the payroll vote is about as false as the suggestion that the Republicans remained in power from 1920 to 1932 because of prohibition.

If Senator Lodge's or any other proposal for changing the electoral system is based on the assumption that the Republicans would benefit by the change, it is erroneous reasoning. The Republicans will be elected when enough Americans are tired of the Democrats.

Instead of worrying about changing the method of voting for a president, the Republicans ought to busy themselves rebuilding their party into a fighting instrument serving an American ideal. And that instrument should be directed courageously and wisely without the politeness of a bipartisan foreign policy and similar efforts to convince the voter that the only difference between a Republican and a Democrat is that the Republicans believe that they can do what the Democrats do better than the Democrats do it.

Henry Cabot Lodge ought to have more to say than this:

"The American political party, whether it be Republican or Democratic, is not an end in itself: it is significant only as part of our two-party system."

By George Sokolsky

That sentence is the beginning of an article, "modernize the GOP," in which Senator Lodge sets forth his ideas. It is not good enough. Suppose he had started with this sentence:

"The American political party, whether it be Republican or Democratic, is not an end in itself: it is significant only if and as long as it presents to our people an instrument for expressing their ideals and purposes."

Does that not come closer to what our people expect of a party? True, that expectation has not been fulfilled and therefore the people have not voted with enthusiasm and in sufficient numbers for the Republicans. The 1948 election might have been won but for that.

It is all right for those actively engaged in politics to avoid clear-cut statements of ideals, but this much they must recognize, that each one of them has only one vote and that while a man may vote for himself, he cannot win over large numbers of others unless they admire his personality, believe in his ideals and principles, or oppose his adversary.

I want to cite one more example or inadequate cerebration. Senator Lodge says:

"... we should inaugurate a form of tax reduction which will encourage the growth of new economic activity and will therefore, in the larger sense, be most advantageous to the government finances."

But we are not interested in "

Bloomington Wins Cage Title in Last Second, 47-46

Pete Gray stands as the hero of Bloomington today. Fought with just one second left in the game and Bloomington losing to the Legion, 46-45, Gray dropped in two free throws to give half the crowd heart failure and his team the mythical championship of the Cage League.

In the second game of the last night of the first annual Cage League competition at the Armory, Rife's came from behind to knock off Company "M", 59 to 51.

But it was the crucial opener that drew the largest crowd of the season to the Armory and kept them short of breath as the lead seceded about a half-dozen times right down to the last swish.

The new champs, Bloomington, took a 25-21 edge over the Legion at halftime and then the crowd witnessed a second half in which both sides fought furiously to grab or hold a bare lead as the pressure piled up.

Bloomington, playing fast and smooth, got off to a quick start and had a nine-point edge. But the Legion hacked away and cut it to 7-6 to 6-5 to 3-1 and finally took a one-point lead with about 12 minutes left.

Bloomington took it back, then lost it, then got it again—it was that kind of game. The fans, with big followings for both teams, were probably closer than the players to nervous breakdowns as the clock moved around and the lead changed hands.

Then the Legion held a one-point edge for a couple of minutes as they stymied Bloomington's attempts to score. But Bloomington took a 45-44 edge at the minute mark. The Legion made it 46-45 soon after and the rest of the game remains as a nightmare to the Legion and a miracle to Bloomington.

Bloomington threw up about seven or eight shots in the last ten seconds, trying desperately to score when Gray drew his foul.

Jim Haincock was the champs' sparkplug, putting in 14 points. But, just as important, was the tight Bloomington defense and

Middies Beaten By Springfield.

Thrilling Finishes Mark Most Games

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, March 18—(AP)—Ohio names the all-star cast for its state high school basketball tournament in regional finals tonight.

The field of 224 class A and 906 class B clubs was down to 16 teams today—eight in each class—and four in each division will emerge from tonight's frays and head for the March 23, 24 and 25 finals in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Of the 16 still on deck, only three have ever won a state title—and one of them must drop out tonight as Hamilton Public, the current class A crown wearer, meets Springfield's Wildcats, 1925 champ, in the Cincinnati finals.

Eaton, the 1948 class B king, stayed in the running with a "come-from-behind" 51-44 victory at Springfield over Lockland Wayne, the class all-Negro quintet which reached the final game a year ago.

All of the class A teams firing have appeared in previous state classics, but five of the eight class B squads are making their first bid—and two of them are certain to make it.

Class A survivors are Hamilton Public, Springfield, Youngstown Rayen, Garfield Heights, Akron Garfield, Akron South, Mansfield and Columbus East.

In class B everyone has hung up its uniforms except Zanesville, Eaton, Miller City, Leesville Cross Roads, Philo, Corning, Geneva and Norton.

Plenty Of Thrills
Last night's program was filled with last-minute flurries which swept teams to victory—with Springfield and Columbus East staging the most impressive stretch drives.

Springfield tangled with Middletown's twice-champion Middies, and with three minutes to go was on the short end of a 34-32 count. Right there the famed "Middle magic" which had carried the Butler County club through countless tournament games disappeared and the Wildcats rolled for eight straight points to lock up a 40-34 conquest.

That win shoved the 1925 champs into tonight's game with Hamilton's 1937-49 winners, and the Wildcats must be given an even chance since the Hamilton Blue team will be minus the services of its ace, "Pappy" Smith, who became 20 years old and ineligible yesterday. Hamilton whipped the Wildcats twice during the regular season.

Columbus East, a finalist in 1924, was behind Toledo Whitmer 17-11, 27-25 and 36-35 at the quarters but went out front by 45-42 with two minutes to go. In the two minutes East scored 13 points to turn the affair into a 58-45 rout, giving the Columbus club a regional finals berth against red-hot Mansfield.

Rifes Play At Antioch This Sunday

The Rifes cagers will hit the road this Sunday, traveling to Antioch College in Yellow Springs for a doubleheader.

In the first game, starting about 3:30 P. M. at the Curl Hall gymnasium, the Rifes Club will meet the Antioch All-Stars.

The finale will send Rifes against Pi Kappa Alpha, a fraternity from Wittenberg College, on the same court.

The team representing Washington C. H. will be composed of about the same players who dumped the College All-Stars, U of Dayton, here a few weeks ago by a 48-46 score.

Branching out into new territory, the Rifes team will find the Antioch gym quite different at first sight.

The rectangular backboards are painted a blazing orange. And the free throw lane, painted a bright yellow, has been widened from six to twelve feet, to equalize the game for teams without seven-foot tall players.

The colorful court follows an experiment by schools on the west coast, where various colors were tested on backboards to find out which could be spotted fastest. Players find it a great help since they don't have to try to pick out the backboard from against a wall or background of the same shade.

Coach Fred Pierson said he was aware that such tests were being made and that orange had been found to be the color spotted quickest. The rims of the baskets here are painted orange, incidentally.

The Rifes team will be taking along a few reinforcements for the double battle. A squad of about ten to twelve players is expected to make the trip to Yellow Springs, which lies nine miles beyond Xenia.

Tanners Take Lead In Handicap Loop

The Tanners took over the lead in the Handicap League from the Standard Oilers when they won all three of their games from the NCR Ship-Pack crew in Friday night's bowling at Bowland.

The Standard Oilers were knocked out of first place by the NCR Slitters, who made a clean sweep of their match.

Just to make the evening of shutouts complete, the DP&L outfit blanked the NCR Packers.

Most of the individual scores were in the 400s. The Tanners racked up 2485 for the top team total.

Penningtons Win To Stretch Lead

Paul Pennington's high flying bowling team today had increased its lead in the All Star League to seven games after making a clean sweep of its match with Don Scholl's boys at Bowland Friday night.

The Pennies turned in a total of 2705, the best of the evening. Tony Capuana's 562 was the high individual score.

By rolling a neat 2671 total, the Kirk quintet won two out of three from the Wise Clothiers to hold their No. 2 spot.

Reds Beat Tigers But Hitting Cooler

TAMPA, Fla., March 18—(AP)—This is the day the Cincinnati Reds hope to get at least an inkling as to how their boy will do.

The "boy" is Ewell Blackwell, the lanky right hander who was the hottest thing in the National League in 1947 and then bogged down in 1948 and 1949 under arm and kidney troubles. He is scheduled to make his first start of spring training today against the Washington Senators.

Manager Luke Sewell said Blackwell would go the first two innings and then give way to Kenny Raffensberger.

The Reds cooled off a bit yesterday on long hits but they still had enough to whip the Detroit Tigers 5 to 3, with rookies Johnny Hotk and Harry Perkowski doing the hurting.

Another encouraging note was the Redlegs finally looked at a left handed pitcher. It was Ted Gray and they nicked him for five of their nine hits, including a pair of doubles.

Willie Pep Keeps Title By Beating Frenchman
NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—As long as he doesn't have to fight Sandy Saddler again, Willie Pep will continue to reign over the featherweights for a long time to come.

The little 27-year-old 126-pound champion underscored that last night when he waltzed to an easy, 15-round title bout victory over Ray Famechon of France, the European featherweight king, in Madison Square Garden.

Mystery Is Solved
BARTON, March 18—(AP)—The mysterious disappearance of Frank Huffman, 49, two months ago was solved with recovery of his body yesterday from Lake Anna in a downtown park.

"IT'S SO EASY TO PLOAE A WANT AD."

Tiger First Baseman

LAKELAND, Fla.—The Detroit Tigers can boast one ball of fire in this still-early spring exhibition season. He's first baseman Richard Kryhoski, obtained in a swap with the New York Yankees.

Kryhoski, who is battling with Don Kolloway for the starting spot, grabbed off two singles Friday as the tigers bowed 5-3 to the Cincinnati Reds. He now has eight safeties in 21 trips up for a classy .381 average.

Marion Rife Now New President Of County Teachers Association

Marion Rife, principal of the Milledgeville School, today is the new president of the Fayette County Teachers Association.

His election was merely a matter of routine at the association's annual luncheon meeting at the Country Club here Friday afternoon; for it has long been the custom to elevate the vice presidency each year and alternate the office between a teacher in the city system and one in the country system.

Rife takes the association helm from Mrs. Marcus Prosch, the retiring president.

Miss Amelia Pensyl, the fifth grade teacher at Cherry Hill School, was chosen for the vice president and Mrs. Willard Bitzer, Bloomingburg School, was named the secretary-treasurer to succeed Miss Opal David of Cherry Hill.

Wilson Webb, Wilson School principal was elected to a three-year term on the executive board of the association. He takes the place of Mrs. Howard S. Harper, a Jeffersonville teacher, who retires. Other members of the board are Mrs. Homer Emery of the Jeffersonville School and Miss Ethel Arnold, Washington C. H. High School.

The nominating committee was headed by Mrs. Harry Elliott of Bloomingburg. The other members were Miss Hazel Eckle of the Sunnyside School and Mrs. Martin Crone of the Eastside School.

Principal Speaker
Dr. Samuel Marble, president of Wilmington College, was the principal speaker of the after-luncheon program.

His subject was "A Word Picture Postcard of Foreign Lands," that he visited last year.

Although Europe is making progress largely because of the financial support given by the United States through its Marshall Plan, Dr. Marble said, Americans are not wanted.

This impression, he declared, came from his studies of the people and way of life in Hamburg and Frankfurt in Germany. Both of these cities were battered by American bombers during the late war, but rehabilitation is covering up the evidence of the damage to a large extent, he said.

Dr. Marble expressed the belief that Europe's recovery could be speeded more effectively through American cooperative economic help than through loans or outright giving of money.

Americans could learn much from Europe, Dr. Marble said. He cited, for example, the culture and appreciation of music and art by the people. Europeans, he added, impressed him with their gentleness and politeness in contrast to the brusque hustle and bustle so typical of Americans.

Singing Opens Meeting
The meeting, which got under way about 1:30 P. M., was opened with the invocation by Rev. Francis T. McCarty, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Then there was group singing led by William B. Clift, Jr., the city school music supervisor. Mrs. George Pensyl, city school vocal teacher, was the accompanist.

Two Irish melodies, appropriate for St. Patrick's Day, were sung by a sextet of city teachers: Miss Jane Trent, Miss Amelia Pensyl, Miss Edith Ramage, Miss Sara Keck, Miss Muriel Morton and Miss Eleanor Leiter. William Bowman, the high school vocal music instructor, was the director.

The association, which is made up of teachers in both the county and city schools, meets about this time every year. The purpose of the association and the annual meeting, it was explained, was to give the teachers an opportunity to get better acquainted and to discuss mutual problems and exchange ideas of their profession. Classes were dismissed for the afternoon.

Superintendents Speak
After the luncheon, with its menu of Swiss steak to coconut cream pie, the heads of the two school systems, Supt. William J. Hilty of the county schools and

Future Farmers Hold Fete Here

97 Attend First
Annual Banquet

The Washington C. H. High School chapter of Future Farmers of America brought almost a year of activity to a successful climax Friday night, when it staged its first annual parent-son banquet in the WHS gym.

Ninety-seven FFA members, guests and parents were on hand for the banquet and round of speech making.

Principal speaker for the evening was Glenn Lackey, fourth national vice president of the FFA, who told how the FFA develops leadership in youths. Lackey challenged the boys to go on with FFA work and strive for the high honors which can be theirs.

The gym was decorated with the FFA colors of blue and gold. A big FFA was spelled out in the center of the gym floor with ears of corn on a background of wheat.

Tables were arranged in a "U" shape and decorated in keeping with the FFA theme. A baked ham dinner, featuring scalloped potatoes, baked beans, relishes, rolls, coffee and milk, fruit jello and pie topped with ice cream, was served by the members of the WHS Future Homemakers of America chapter.

Stephen Brown, superintendent of schools here, gave the speech of welcome following the FFA opening ceremony.

Donald Howard recited the FFA creed. Rodney Acton and Hugh Wilson presented a saxophone, trombone duet and Bill Arnold talked about a program of activities planned for this year.

All are members of the FFA chapter at WHS.

Gordon Ryder, chapter advisor, stressed the cooperation which has been given the group by the parents and school officials. And he commended the boys and their parents for getting the new department started.

Big Pipe Line Is Thawed Out

New 26-Inch Loop
Is Placed in Use

The Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation's new 26-inch gas line from a point near Milledgeville to the compressor station near Red Lion in Warren County, was placed in operation Saturday.

While a test was being run on the line with gas at high velocity a section of pipe some 50 feet in length became clogged with "dry ice" and it was necessary to pump warm gas into the line to thaw it out and remove the obstruction.

This occurred earlier this week, and it was two or three days before tests showed that the ice had been melted out and the gas was flowing freely in the loop.

Full connections were made with the remainder of the 26-inch line, and a huge volume of gas is now moving through the entire line across Ohio.

Work on the 33 miles of line started in December, is virtually completed, and only the finishing touches are necessary to have it fully completed.

When work is to start on a 30-inch line planned to span Ohio and into Pennsylvania, has not been announced.

In the meantime Texas Eastern is making plans to build a large line from the eastern terminus of the present lines well up into the New England States.

Some of the officials will remain here indefinitely it is indicated.

Young Republican activities should come to the meeting regardless of whether or not they have received a card.
